

working in partnership with
 Environment Agency

Welcome to WWT Steart Marshes

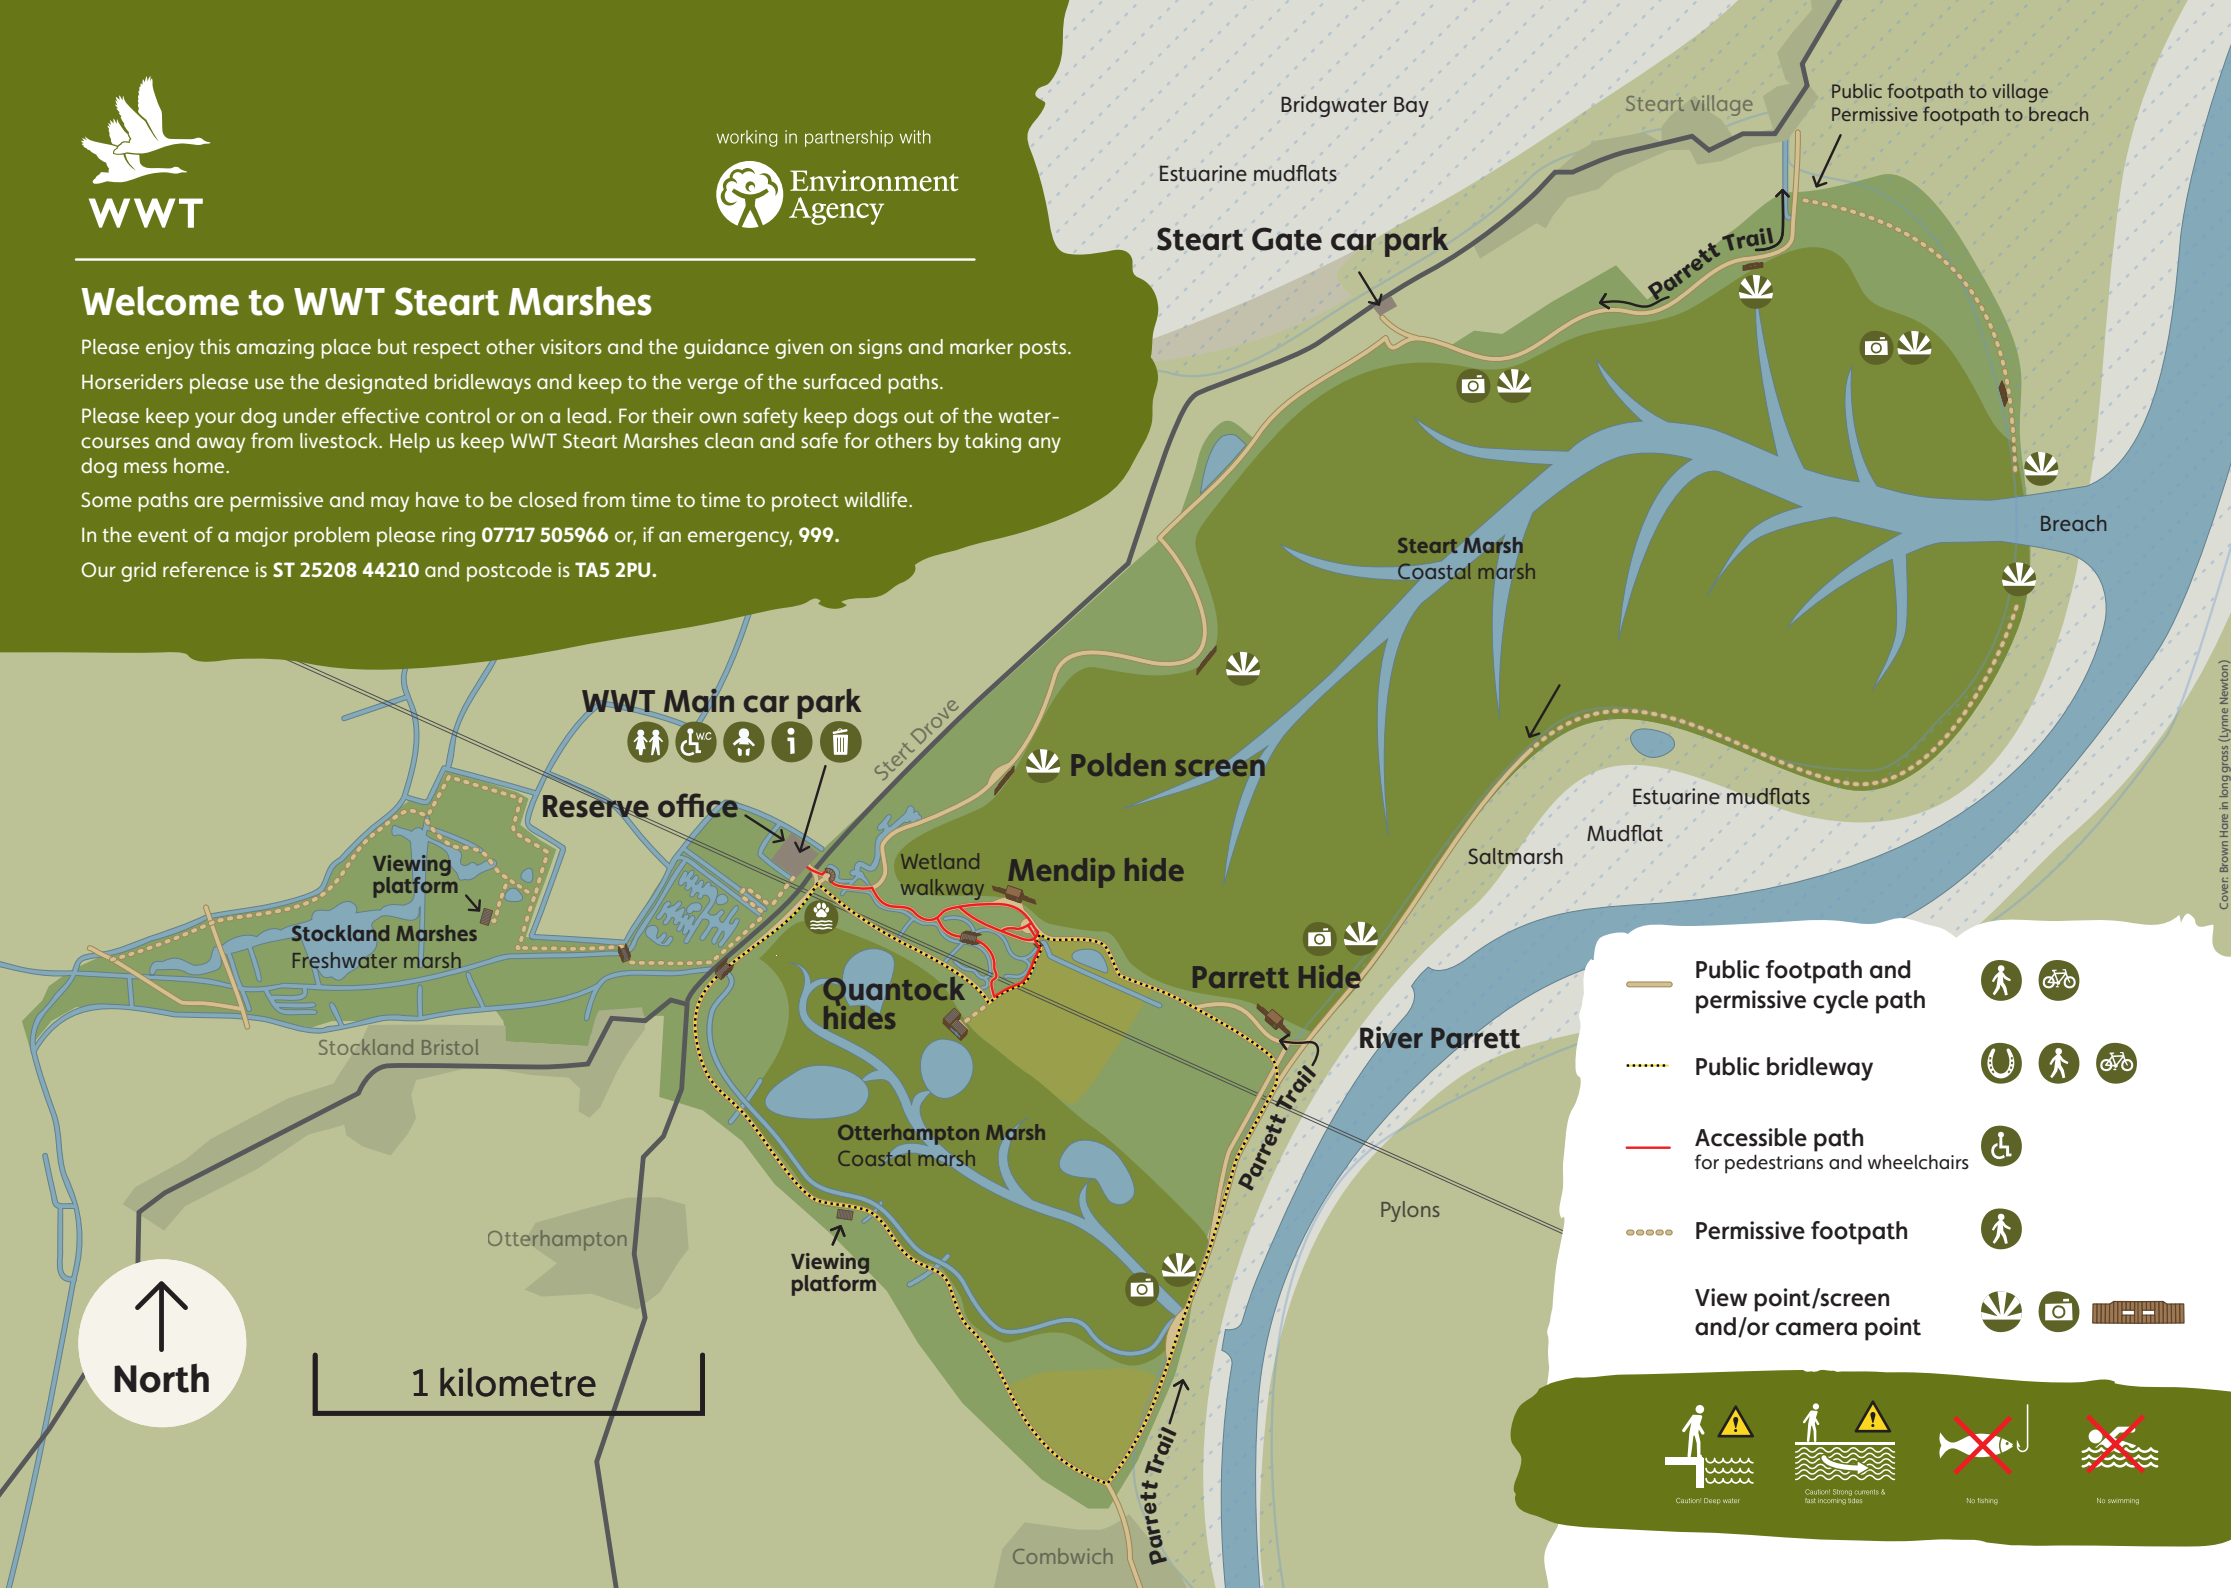

Please enjoy this amazing place but respect other visitors and the guidance given on signs and marker posts. Horseriders please use the designated bridleways and keep to the verge of the surfaced paths.

Please keep your dog under effective control or on a lead. For their own safety keep dogs out of the water-courses and away from livestock. Help us keep WWT Steart Marshes clean and safe for others by taking any dog mess home.

Some paths are permissive and may have to be closed from time to time to protect wildlife.

In the event of a major problem please ring 07717 505966 or, if an emergency, 999.

Our grid reference is ST 25208 44210 and postcode is TA5 2PU.

WELCOME to Steart Marshes

MAP & INFORMATION

Cover: Brown Hare in long grass (Lynne Newton)

Working in partnership with
 Environment Agency

The Steart landscape

What's happening here?

Our coastline is constantly changing. WWT are working here to help form special new habitats for wildlife, improve flood management for local people, lock away carbon, support the local economy and provide an amazing place to visit for recreation and wellbeing.

As sea levels rise, earth and shingle banks protecting the peninsula become vulnerable to erosion and more difficult to maintain. Elsewhere on the Severn Estuary, important wetland habitats are being lost.

WWT and the Environment Agency are turning this situation into a positive solution. In front of new flood banks, large areas of saltmarsh are being created. Aerial photographs help us to see how quickly this is happening.

Saltmarsh locks away thousands of tonnes of carbon every year, providing a long term and sustainable solution to the fight against climate change. The developing marsh, with shifting channels and creeks, also provides a vital refuge for wetland wildlife and is an important nursery for fish.

In some areas, newly created fresh water grazing marshes, also important for wetland wildlife, are designed to help protect local properties from flooding by temporarily holding and storing water after heavy rain.

Aerial photographs credited to Marine Science Support

Black-tailed godwits

What to see

Since 2014 when the tides started to wash over the land and the areas of freshwater began to develop there have been dramatic changes to this landscape. New plants and animals are now colonising the reserve and continue to do so in greater numbers with each passing year.

Highlights throughout the year

Wetland walkway: Meandering paths take you through different habitats, over bridges, with 4 hides offering breathtaking views.

Wide open landscape views from the main observation points (marked on the map). Get all-round views of the Poldens, Mendips, Brecon Beacons, Exmoor and Quantocks.

Breach point: It's up to an hour's walk from the car park – so make sure you see it at its best on a 'spring' high tide.

Wildlife highlights in summer

Birds such as little egret, avocet, swallow and skylark.

Many dragonflies such as black-tailed skimmer and emperor.

Plants such as flowering rush and purple loosestrife.

Wildlife highlights in winter

Birds such as teal, wigeon, peregrine, meadow pipit and clouds of waders such as lapwing and golden plover moving over the marsh.

Information

Admission is FREE

Open all year round: Take a short stroll or explore for a whole day on foot, bike, wheelchair, or by horse on the circular bridleway. Car parks and paths subject to a few local restrictions.

Hides, toilets and 2.1m height restriction barrier (main car park):

Open daily 9am - 4.30pm. 2.1m height restriction in place at all times at Steart Gate car park.

Cycling at Steart

Dogs are welcome on most paths but must be kept under effective control at all times. Please refer to dog leaflet for more information. There are no dog waste or litter bins on site, so please take all your rubbish home with you and try not to disturb the animals and plants living here.

There are hides, benches and viewpoints around the site.

Binoculars are useful to bring to help you view the landscape.

Tide times: Only the highest tides enter the reserve, making an impressive spectacle. Check tide times via our website and noticeboard in the main car park.

Photography: Fixed points for placing your camera are dotted around the site.

Broad bodied Chaser

Fancy a cuppa?

There's no cafe on site, but it's an ideal picnic spot.

To purchase refreshments, follow signs to the larger local villages and towns.

Help us protect wildlife

WWT stands for the Wildfowl & Wetlands Trust. Our charity's mission is to work together to save wetlands for wildlife and people. Our vision is that society values, protects and manages wetlands to sustain wildlife, people and the planet.

We need you!

To manage the site and welcome visitors, we need volunteers with a range of skills. Are you interested in any of the following?

- Practical management
- Recording wildlife
- Talking to visitors

You can also support WWT's work by joining as a member and as an added bonus gain free entry to all of our wetland centres across the UK.

Help us look after this special place by donating £3, £5 or £10 at the Tap & Donate machine near the main entrance.

Contact us

WWT Steart Marshes, Stert Drove, Bridgwater, Somerset, TA5 2PU

E: info.steart@wwt.org.uk

T: 01278 651090 or 07717 505966

For the latest wildlife news, visit www.wwt.org.uk/steart

Taken photos? Spotted anything unusual?

Post on WWT's Twitter @WWTSteart or Facebook page @wwtsteartmarshes.

We would love to hear from you.

Find out more
www.wwt.org.uk/steart

